READING LIST FOR THE ORAL EXAM: The political theory faculty don't think it's appropriate for this field to have a single standardized reading list. There are a vast number of approaches, thematic areas, and literature in the field and the individual needs of students will be more specific. For students doing theory, we think it's pedagogically best for any list to be developed by the particular examining committee in consultation with the individual student.